Trustee Blickenstaff plans to auction the two remaining real properties in the next 45 days. He has an auctioneer who will advertise and pick a date he believes will generate the most interest. Those two properties do not have liens against them and hopefully they will generate in excess of $100,000, $65,000 to $75,000 the one property and $20,000 to $25,000 the other property. Also, he is working with an expert to value the Cobra and to schedule a date to auction the car. Mr. Blickenstaff believes that auction will occur in January. He also plans to auction the remaining personal property in January. Assuming the sales are not delayed, he believes the bankruptcy can be closed by March or April of next year and the bankruptcy court can enter an order distributing funds to the victims and any other creditors shortly after the final report is filed by the trustee. I will mark on my calendar to provide you another update in December.
